You can run through every forest You can sail in the seven seas You can climb the highest mountain To try and dissolve these memories

In case you never knew it You can't undo it

You can jump off the edge of the world Hide out in some monastery Lose your mind in meditation And never put your mind at ease

You think you're running to it But you are wading through it A sunny mystery

Life is the dream that you wake up to Dreams are the life from which you wake Everybody makes the extra effort Never knowing what to do

But you know the answer Yeah, you know the score It feels just like before

It's a sunny mystery
That's how it's got to be
Because no one knows for sure
The outcome of this
Sunny mystery
