I thought that it was you The things you saw me do They were true

Little did I know
You found me in your joy
And there was I, a little boy

My shadows they're not new My soul's split in two Lord, I thought that it was you

This Christmas snow that falls Gives silence to us all, amen, amen

You know my deepest sin You've seen me deep within So fill me now like wind And let the miracle begin

There's a river and you know
There's a place we used to go
That's where I throw our ashes now

I must have walked into a cave Among these things that you must save And there I touched the grave

You know my deepest sin You've seen me deep within But fill me now like wind And let the miracle begin

You know my deepest sin You've seen me deep within But fill me now like wind And let the miracle begin

Sometimes I felt so sure When I opened up your doors That there'd been no one there before

You know my deepest sin You've seen me deep within But fly, fly higher from it Just look into my eyes

You know my deepest sin You've seen me deep within But fill me now like wind And let the miracle begin

And the secrets that you say
