

I Am The Greatest

A House

1 2 3 4 Whatever happened to good music? You know in the days when you
Could feel it?
It was almost sexual, sending shivers up your spine. This, I believe is Because songwriters were not restricted by the small music dictatorship
Which
Now exists. Let's hope the future holds something better than the present
And
Let's leave the past alone. The music business is incapable of bringing Music
To the future, as it sits just waiting to pounce on any third rate trend,
Milking it to death, once again putting money where the music is not. I
Only
Wish I was born before all the great ideas were used. While I struggle to Working around this, the most annoying thing is watching other people
Succeed
Through stealing them. I could have been a legend in my own time; I could Have sold a lot of records; I could have enjoyed it as well. I could have Been a lot of things. One thing that I know I am and will always be: I am
The
Greatest.

I bumped into this bloke the other day we used to know in school. We didn't Say 'hello' because he had his hair slightly perked and I had all mine
Shaved
Off. He was always a bit of a clown. He used to be a hard man, but he did
His homework, because he knew that one day he'd be going places. I knew I Should have asked him there and then 'was he happy now that he'd finally Got

There?' He goes to bed thinking of ways to fiddle ten more pounds on his Expenses. Me? I go to bed thinking of all the reasons why I am the Greatest.

We always use other people as the mirror in which we judge ourselves. So,
We
Are constantly changing to meet their expectations. Maybe we've forgotten
The
Meaning of the word 'individual.' It's as if everything we do or think is Valued for it's conformity. Anything fresh or original is hacked down and Always brought down to size. You don't even think for yourself, as a life
That is led for you is some kind of problem. You wouldn't recognize a new Idea if it spat in your face and screamed out [?]. Who am I to Talk? Who the hell do I think I am? I am the greatest.

Welcome to the wonderful world of show business. The dark and dank place
Rarely lit by the harsh light of reality. I look around and I see big Mouthed rock stars with opinions on everything and answers to nothing.
Burnt out old men with money to burn. Bandwagons full of bands with Sycophantic fans with no lives of their own. A place where image is king
And
Music is a poorer relation that I can relate to. I am the greatest.

I am the greatest.

I am!