

All This Time

A Loss for Words

She, she was the one, yeah
Baby blue eyes.
Her hand was grazing down my thigh.
We had drinks until the last call,
Stumbled out into the night.
Nothing better than the Boston moon,
Falling into the high tide.
It was just you,
And me baby.

You had me thinking that I,
Was the one with your heart all this time.
You had me living a lie, yeah.
You really had me thinking.
Like really had me thinking, yeah.

Hey, how was your time spent,
Over the years?
Living your life by lies and fears.
You've been ripping out my pride,
Sleeping around this town.
Did you really think your scam,
Wouldn't come back around?
Leading me astray.

You had me thinking that I,
Was the one with your heart all this time.
You had me living a lie, yeah.
You really had me thinking.
Like really had me thinking, yeah.

All along I thought melody was for us.
We were disharmonies,
In this played out chorus.
Smile of half truths,
Eyes that read like danger,
And a face to fit a stranger.

You had me thinking that I,
Was the one with your heart all this time.
You had me living a lie, yeah.
You really had me thinking.
Like really had me thinking, yeah.

You had me thinking that I,
Was the one with your heart all this time.
You had me living a lie, yeah.
You really had me thinking.
Like really had me thinking, yeah.
