

it's absurd to suppose there is a being.
millionfold bigger than us that brings to life this world
it came into being from itself.
by itself without reason without help.

at a gathering of those tiny microbes.
living in billions in our blood.
an exceptionally enlightened one gave a lecture about their lies in his times.
ladies and gentlemen, she said, I hope so there is no one between us, who holds on to the outstripped idea of a being.
that reigns our world by its will.

it's absurd...

a lot of us just as simple like those tiny microbes, far too many.
they can't imagine that our world
is a part of a big organism.
called universe or body of god.
they can't imagine that our world
is a part of a big one.

it's absurd...
