i guess its time, time for me to give up on you i know what i promised, i promised forever but you took the fut ure away seems like I'm always taking a beating fighting your past and y our pain and its so fucking cold in your life that its almost frozen up mine lips like addiction alive inside id embrace your twisted love if you let me but you and i both know that nothings ever good enough for you to be alive just once again inside of you and your big distrust I'm a jester in your dramas whimpering for your affection visualizing extra sexy I'm in junkie mode and it dent stop coming at you coming at me coming in your face because love makes it that much better and i know I'm the man who's job you all just shitcanned but if you'll wake up soon baby, you might realize what's right in your face but until then I'm nothing without you you've quietly killed all your sleepwalking demons and you've g iven them all to me i wish id learned how to help myself while i was taking care of you and there is still nothing that i wouldn't do in the realm of k eeping your smile safe but your love equals lies in the eyes of the ones that you woul d die for lips like addiction alive inside id embrace your twisted love if you let me but you and i both know that nothings ever good enough for you you're so fucking wise about yer life yer past yer brain you've got every other person into two categories either help you or hurt you there's no in between either play the part or get out, is that right? did you know id never leave you forever just to breathe you and you knew that i could give you all the love you deserved so still you took all that i could give and i know you really liked to fuck me but there's still so much more you never let us explore but its irrelevant now that your the one that nobody trusts but what the hell I'm nothing without you L'm nothing...
