

The Wind Whispers

Adelphi

I lie silent, my sleep refused
Questions color my mind, cluttered and confused
But somehow somehow...oh, oh

Ooo, ooo, the wind whispers its secrets to you and you won't

Sway with the trees and feel the warm summer breeze caress each leaf, gently
Night owls call out while willows weep to the sounds of nearby towns
The slightest symphonies sing and captivate the evening with most agreeable strings And when his hands finally meet his chorus lulls you to sleep a tiresome melody invites you

Ooo, ooo, the wind whispers its secrets to you and you won't

I lie silent, my sleep refused
Questions color my mind, cluttered and confused
But somehow
somehow...