

'...far back in time, where the outlines of history dissolve, lies the world of myths, it looses itself farther back into the mist of light where pictures appear and then vanish in an eternal stream. Through the cloudscapes of the past the sunlight is falling in across idavollen, where the gods throw their golden dice in the grass in fearless game, while uddarbrunnen trickles in the silence...'