

call me sacreligious, i see you as fictitious living your life in a storybook nightmare gimmicks meant to infiltrate & brainwash today's youth another fashion slogan what would you do if i tore your dreams & you heard the violent screams of a polluted, starved, corrupted world & soiled what was serene greased up & coated evangelistic lies now you can slide along your apathetic life the path towards the light has made you blind you've accepted moral values but you've left something behind rape & murder aren't condoned in the bible "how to fuck the world" should be the new title of the book that you translate to cover up your hate if i decided your fate what would you do if i took you back in history and you saw your family raped & murdered in front of you because of your beliefs hypocrite, so full of shit! religion does not make a person good or bad whose right or wrong? only fate will tell but if it was all up to me it would be you that burned in hell burned in hell but if it was all up to me it would be you that burned in hell