

Where Is the Sky

Alexz Johnson

Is anybody listening?
Can anyone see through this fog?
Feeling like you're in the race but you never even started at all
Staring at my empty face, looks better in the dark of the night
Feeling like I've been erased, If I fix it will it be all right?

I'm left in doubt
I'm losing out
Yeah

Where is the sky?
How do we know what's wrong from right?
Where should I go?
Cause people always tell me that I move too slow
It's something that we all don't know, yeah

Losing hours every night, building you piece by piece
You've watched me through my broken dreams
With the pain kickin' back at my feet
Never speaking out of line, believing only what I see
Where have all the flowers gone? I never picked one for me

I wanna know where we go
Yeah

Where is the sky?
How do we know what's wrong from right?
Where should I go?
Cause people always tell me that I move too slow
It's something that we all don't know, yeah

Fall back
Don't let it all show through
Don't laugh, everything is up to you
You're changing tides
With only your peace of mind
Give it up, give it up
And you'll never get your wings to fly

Where (How do we know what's wrong from right?)
Where's there to go?
Cause people always tellin' me I'm movin' too slow
There's something that we all don't know

Where
How do we know what
How do we know what we are?