

Different

Alice Russell

Remember that we are what we are and all we are
We dance , we breathe for, we may change and all it is
Remember that we are what we are and all we are
We dance , we breathe for, we may change and all it is

So in the answer lies the question
The subject that we started all along
My mind didn't feel so open
Imagination filling up my soul

So we don't know what we doing
We do know that's what we should believe
But it makes no difference of what you see inside

So don't you see you're not so different
Take yourself back to innocence
Don't you see you're not so different
Take yourself back to innocence

Don't know where you're coming
Don't know where you're going too
You can't tie down an angel
A picture of life it's true

When rain drops come and go
The different never hide
Where you lose yourself
You find your mind

So don't you see you're not so different
Take yourself back to innocence
Don't you see you're not so different
Take yourself back to innocence
