

Bite My Tongue

All That Remains

Thought you were invincible, thought you were bulletproof
There's no use talking sense to you, in love with your abuse
Your actions speaking for your mouth, there's not much to defend

Paint yourself into a corner, staring at the end

Never one to bite my tongue, nothing's left, I've given all I've got

I'm at the wall, disintegrating

Apologies are empty words, I know you're only sorry you got caught

You're at the wall, disintegrating

Left your life in ruins, you've burned every bridge you had

You beg me just to hear you out and try to make amends

Too late now, I've heard that line, poor me, I've got it bad

Try to hold onto your life, it's slipping through your hands

Never one to bite my tongue, nothing's left, I've given all I've got

I'm at the wall, disintegrating

Apologies are empty words, I know you're only sorry you got caught

You're at the wall, disintegrating

Look yourself in the mirror, you created the problem

All your aspirations, disintegrating

So, go drown in the bottle, it's a race to the bottom

I'm not gonna watch you disintegrate alone

You're on your own, no more putting up with you, you're on your own
