Orphan Train

Allison Moorer

Come all you broken hearted come And lay your burden down Come kings and queens, come royalty Surrender up your crown

Come empty handed, come with nothing Of your own to claim Come naked, poor, come like a child To ride the orphan train

Come ride, ride on the orphan train Put your ear to the track, you can hear your name Come ride, ride on the orphan train It'll take you all the way home

The way is narrow, it is steep That brings you to the door But love awaits there to embrace Your heart forevermore

Come ride, ride on the orphan train Put your ear to the track, you can hear your name Come ride, ride on the orphan train It'll take you all the way home

Come you abandoned, you forsaken Friendless and alone Come refugees left homesick for Some place you've never known

Here princes, paupers, criminals And saints are all the same No more or less than God's beloved Child aboard this train

Come ride, ride on the orphan train Put your ear to the track, you can hear your name Come ride, ride on the orphan train It'll take you all the way home

Come ride, ride on the orphan train I put my ear to the track and I heard my name Come ride, ride on the orphan train It'll take us all the way home