

All We Needed

Allister

Million miles from home, and I finally meet someone like you, but we'll just be separated soon you say don't overthink, and that we should try and make the most of this time before it goes I knew when this had started, how it'd end I knew when this had started, how it'd end
But I can't live life in hiding, and I don't regret a thing
All we needed was time Countdown now until the morning light
And the ocean divides
Thrown back to the lives we left behind Can't help but think of all the things we could've had
We just never got a chance
As we said our goodbye's, s, I had to fight the urge to up and move, and start over here with you.
Maybe it wouldn't work, and this whole thing was just meant to be left as a memory.
I knew when this had started, how it'd end
But I can't live life in hiding, and I don't regret a thing
All we needed was time Countdown now until the morning comes
And the ocean divides
Turning us into strangers once again
Can't help but think of all the things we could've had
We just never got a chance promised you some day I'd make it back again, but even if I did, would it ever be the same
