Alphaville

Follow me way back in time
To my post war phantom empire
Freezing and homeless
In the cold winter night
Hanging out in a tubeway station
With no place to go
Full of dreams and illusions
Waiting for the end of the night

Then I saw your face all over the place
A porn-supermarket ad, a strange attractor
A moment I will never ever forget

How could I know this was my flight to Venus
When I bought my underground ticket?
That night I waved good-bye to life
With the european narcotics kings
And their wives
In simmering anticipation

She looked like the queen of babylon
A girl of the underworld
Soft skin on black silk
Bathed in cold neon light
An icon at the wall of a cathedral
A b-girl rhapsody
A date with desaster
Between the devil and the deep blue

Forbidden paradise when worlds collide
In this city by night
I was on a most fantastic journey

How could I know this was my flight to Venus
When I bought my underground ticket?
That night I waved good-bye to life
With the european narcotics kings
And their wives
In simmering anticipation

It's a glittering secret
A magic spell
The pale girls they know
But they, they never will tell
I wish we were movie stars
Just you and me
And Saturday night, Saturday night
Became eternity

How could I know this was my flight
How could I know this was my flight
How could I know this was my flight

How could I know this was my flight to Venus
When I bought my underground ticket?
That night I waved good-bye to life
With the european narcotics kings

And their wives
In simmering anticipation
