So why should I take your hand when you can't promise happy endings?

It's starting to get old that story
Yet untold
Reflect before
We walk into
What we already know
Won't be so easy
Looking back at high school drama
Didn't try to fix what we thought were problems
Done with writing empty letters
Is there no other way?

Staring at your reflection every day

Can make or break my heart away

When you won't listen to what's hard for me to say

Those tear stained eyes can make me feel so sad

And once again we're further away from what we never had

So why should I take your hand
When you can't promise happy endings?
Just run away with so much left to share
It's just not enough
When we're so much more than friends
We're much too young to throw away our cares

There's no sense in regretting what's been said in our yesterdays We can't take back what's done but we can look ahead And I would walk so much further just to know what I'm doing here And there's no end to what I'd give to know just what you meant when you said:

How can I feel alive when we can't help but break our backs just to survive? Is this another time we can't control our lives?

Those tear stained eyes can make me feel so sad And once again we're further away from what we never had

So why should I take your hand
When you can't promise happy endings?
Just run away with so much left to share
It's just not enough
When we're so much more than friends
We're much too young to throw away our cares

So why should I take your hand

How can I feel alive when we can't help but break our backs just to survive? Is this another time we can't control our lives?

Those tear stained eyes can make me feel so sad And once again we're further away from what we never had

When you can't promise happy endings?

Just run away with so much left to share

It's just not enough

When we're so much more than friends

Tisten z www.txp.cz young to throw away our cares

Sponzor: www.srovnavac.cz - šetříme na pojištění!