Oh, What a Life

American Authors

There was snow, There was snow Stretched for miles and more Where we buried, where we buried Our souls

Oh I long, Oh I long For them days left and gone Where we sang and where we danced to a brighter song

But now I look upon a field with bodies stretched out and I fee l nothing But something's burning in my soul I let it lose control and I' m in, Oh God I've sinned

But I tried so hard, and we tried so hard And it's a long long road, that you told me so Yeah I tried so hard, to forget where we are And all we do is laugh and we sing

And we laughed oh, and we cried and thought oh, what a life And we laughed oh, and we cried and thought oh, what a life And we laughed, and we cried and thought oh, what a life

But I tried so hard, but we killed our hearts In valleys low, I hear the trumpets blow Yeah, I tried so hard, yet I'm lost and scarred And I'm filled with regret yet I sing

And we laughed oh, and we cried and thought oh, what a life. And we laughed oh, and we cried and thought oh, what a life. And we laughed, and we cried and thought oh, what a life.
