Every New Morning

American Steel

I've been watching too many suns rise spliced together by pattern and spite I say I love you too many times and you can't can't drunk anymore

I slept off all the signals and got f**k-all for warning I wish I was back in the drunk tank drowning Every new morning

I was lost but now I'm found searching every pub in town cuz you been sleeping every day and night burning out the bulb in your reading light

I slept off all the signals and got f**k-all for warning I wish I was back in the drunk tank drowning Every new morning

You'd cry your heart out thinking twice You'd kill yourself with the second chance I drank whatever they gave me one nickel to save me I'll choose my own painful direction to follow -Every new morning-

You don't love me no more You won't love me no more