

Clair De Lune

Amiel

The year comes as the sun sets my eyes swell with simplicity the call of human nothingness the answer of everything i find myself lost in your majesty

The worlds tells of innocence like the child inside of me it's only good while its hearts beats beauty brave the pain
so you may drink of me

You left me
as i walk beside the water look up to the moon
my life becomes a river as i run into you

Stars prick their bed of pink bleeding blue find there way to you eyes as i stare into you self falls away in the twilight this is the first of our summer nights now there is nothing we must be or do

If i could freeze this moment in time i'd frame it and hang it in the hall of divive i'd call the whole world and beg them to see how much we love how lucky i'd be

I don't know where we end up begin i don't know if that's yours of my skin i've got nothing to lose everything I am i give up to you

I walk beside the water

Comes as the sunsets
