

A Shade Of Gray

Amoral

I don't know where I am,
how I got here,
or the fate that awaits me But I'd rather be in any other place but this Separating my eyelids,
trying to focus my vision to no avail
There's simply nothing there

And then it hits me
The answer is right there before me
The all escapes from my lungs

Beneath the surface
There's no way I could fight
this It's getting dark
I'm going down

The end is flying towards me
A shade of gray amidst all blue New form of pain I never knew

I'm aware that it's random, but believe when I say it feels personal to me A thousand pains piercing through my skin
I reach for the eyes, but they're too far away Just seconds and I'll seize to exist

The nightmare holds me
I like so many others before me
The air escapes, from my lungs

Beneath the surface
There's no way I could fight
this
It's getting dark
I'm going down

The end is flying towards me
A shade of gray amidst all
blue
New form of pain I never knew