The Castaway

Amorphis

A bird flew out of Lapland An eagle from the North East

One wing ruffled the water And the other swept the sky It's tail skimmed the sea

It flutters, it glides It looks, it turns round

"Why, man are you in the sea Fellow, among the billows?"