

Monsters

Amyst

so here you stand quietly rooted to where life has planted you, these woods are silent to those that wander through, the monsters surrounding her are waiting to play a part in this, your elegy reminds them, and if your weepings are heard by those that followed you, she will hide, her eyes look different than yours, if she looks deeper she will find you