Sound The Alarm

Lie to me honestly I hear, but still, I don't see Just where the actions meet the words You just sound the alarm Racing pulse and boiling blood At fever-pitch Another finger-pointing mob With stones to throw

But if it truly mattered And if you truly cared It would be altogether different Let the sirens scream But leave me alone to decide And leave me to what I might find

Starving to understand You swallowed the lies Eager to spit them out To feed the masses And the guilt they hide

Answer me honestly No more false transparencies Just where does motive meet concern? You just sound the alarm Spreading fear to bury trust To distract Until, lost and scared Frustration forces blame

Starving to understand You swallowed the lies Eager to spit them out To feed the masses And the guilt they hide

Answer me honestly No more false transparencies Just where does motive meet concern? You just sound the alarm Spreading fear to bury trust To distract Until, lost and scared Frustration forces blame

Sound the alarm! Sound the alarm! Sound the alarm! Sound the alarm!

Starving to understand You swallowed the lies Choking to spit them out To rid this guilt inside

Anacrusis