

Maps for the Getaway

Andrew McMahon in the Wilderness

Parked outside the house we used to live there's a light left on inside think of all the days we spent orchestrating accidents lights that used to blind us somehow they will guide us through the night following the outline of your face i can see your breath move in the dark through all the all-apparent years the tears of joy,

the face of fear
now that we're not hiding somehow you're still riding in my car

No cash in the bank
no paid holiday is all we have
all we have is
gas in the tank
maps for the getaway
all we have
all we have is time

staring down the green roof and the walls the balcony, the hills, the pain the years of hope
the months of rain
now that we're outside it i guess we survived it after all

all we have is
gas in the tank
all we have
all we have is time

all we have is time
all we have is time

no white picket fence
a job with the government
all we have
are mornings in bed
coffee and aspirin
all we have

no cash in the bank
no sign of yesterday
all we have
is gas in the tank

all we have is time
all we have is time
