We've known each other for so long You're a friend I don't want to compromise But you reassure my insecurities Through all my nervousness inside

You softly squeeze my hand and Say everything's okay And that there's no reason to be scared

Over and over you tell me how much you care for me And over and over you hold me like lovers do

Now over and over I wonder when the morning comes
Will you still be here?

As I lay beside you With a quivered look on my face Was this real or was I fooling myself? Did I make a mistake?

As you gently sleep
All I can do is stare
When the sun breaks through, what will you do?

Over and over you tell me how much you care for me And over and over you hold me like lovers do

Now over and over I wonder when the morning comes
Will you still be here?

When you wake, will you still feel the same?
Please don't make me feel like this was all in vain
'Cause I've given you my precious love
I gave you all I had

Over and over you tell me how much you care for me And over and over you hold me like lovers do
Now over and over I wonder when the morning comes
Will you still be here?

Will you still be here?