

Collateral Damage

Angelus Apatrida

Across a paradise in lands we've never gone (to) Step by step on the march to decide what's right and wrong They said that we didn't have the power to kill 'em all But what they all forgot is what we're searching for

Prepare for war, the end has now begun Just say hello to your new overlords

It smells like mustard gas we want your bodies burnt We don't exterminate we clean these bags of shit Collateral damage, (Do) you know what does it mean? Remember: We don't kill we bring peace to your lands

In times of suffocation (we) ask God to turn this hell on earth The flash bangs nailed to the cross I cannot keep on this (I feel) I surrender, I have failed We cannot break with stones the armies approaching our homes

What's going on today in the world we're living in? The madmen kill in the name of God Disturbed minds are leading legions of soldiers to slay Where the hell is our sanity?

This time, for them will be no tomorrow, so be welcome And never think you can break my lines If you ever had this thought I say never! You will never walk this land!