

Will You Be Here

Anita Cochran

You ask me, if I love you
It's something I should know by now
Well, I don't look at love
As something you play with
When I give my heart, I give it all

But it's been awhile
Since I've felt these old feelings
You're tearing down walls
That I've built 'round my heart
So I have to ask if you're sure that you're ready
Before I let the rest of me fall

Will you be here, when I need a shoulder
And hold to my hand when I need you most
Promise your love, always and forever
It's something that's got to be clear
Will you be here

When the nights are long
And the chill gets colder
Will your heart stay strong
And love with no doubt
Will you look at me, when I get older
The same way you look at me now

Will you be here, when I need a shoulder
And hold to my hand when I need you most
Promise your love, always and forever
It's something that's got to be clear
Will you be here
