

No Way Out

Anna Ternheim

Sign of winter in the midst of June
by the window
by the window; on the kitchen floor.
Lead a woman with a broken jaw.
by the window
by the window; on the kitchen floor.
In the middle of her broken land there no history
to look back on and find comfort in now.
To aloud laughter to dry a night.
Changing won't protect her from a violent man.
No way out, no way out by forgetting and forgiving now
No way out, no way out by healing the damage done.
Ignore the promises he'll bring you when he seeks your forgiveness, praising your name.
To reinstall trust, reinvent true love again,
it's a wicked man. The worst kind.
A curse upon his name.
No way out, no way out by forgetting and forgiving now
No way out, no way out by healing the damage done.
No way out, no way out now.
No way out, no way out now.
