Cracks In the Earth

Architects

In the bigger picture I've been painted out Cracks in the earth blacken the sea No canvas is reserved for me Look up close and try to see In every stroke lies past alone

Too close to home Cutting too close to bone The ink has dried and words reveal Too close to home Cutting too close to the bone It's too easy to admit defeat

You aren't a child fighting in a war Son please don't tell me that this is bored Tear your things out from the earth Long departed we're so short sighted

Too close to home Cutting too close to bone The ink has dried and words reveal Too close to home Cutting too close to the bone It's too easy to admit defeat

Too close to home Cutting too close to bone The ink has dried and words reveal Too close to home Cutting too close to the bone It's too easy to admit defeat