Low

Architects

I can't see myself holding on for much longer It's tearing me apart I feel so out of place from the rest of you All I needed was something And that something was you But you're so far away now Can you hear me screaming?