

Happy New Year

Arco

January sky like a slate wiped clean and stillness of air where nothing has been wait for your word as if to say another last chance lives from today happy new year - the world just keeps turning day into night, night into day holding on tight, millions all hoping something like love will light up the way dying for change, but the feeling won't last summer will come and be over too fast grow into sun, fade into rain a miniature life to live over again happy new year - the world just keeps going tumbling round, screaming through space

something like love will light up their face happy new year to everyone hurting praying this time it all becomes clear here when the light is pale and uncertain

happy new year
happy new year
