Tell me how many women childhood dreams come to past Tell me how many movies turn out real There are so many questions
Questions I'll like to ask
So you can understand exactly how I feel

Tell me how many people wish they were someone else Someone they think the world wants them to be Tell me how many babies will be born just to die Leaving me with these questions Asking why

Tell me how do trees whisper
How do birds learn to sing
And how does the rainbow stay the same
How do bees make their honey
How do they learn to sting
Can a broken heart get back to heal again

How do people get so busy they don't find time to love What's the truth behind why people go to war Why is there so much religion yet there's so little love Will I ever get to know the truth some day

Where's the youth who's gonna dare - where's the elder who real ly cares
Why do people believe things they know arent true

Why do people believe things they know arent true When you look into the mirror who do you see Why do we have to grow to be wise
