

Love Has A Life

Ashley Gearing

She looked out the window
And said "There's another blue bird"
He used to watch those blue birds for hours
Would you like some more tomatoes?
That old man used to plant tomatoes
Right there in the middle of my flowers
She told me come that August
She'd be fifteen years without him
But it felt just like he was there
As Grandma talked about him

Love has a life of it's own
It's never really gone
As long
As one heart remembers
Time could never take away the years
Full laughter and tears
Or one moment shared together
Love has a life of it's own
And it lives on forever

And she pulled out his picture
Said "Look, you've got his blue eyes"
Ah those blue eyes always let him get his way
But she opened up his bible
And read his favorite scripture
"And from the dust, I saw him rise that day"
She had painted me a portrait
Of the man he used to be
And though she's with him now
They'll always be a part of me

Love has a life of it's own
It's never really gone
If one heart remembers
Love has a life of it's own
And it live on forever
It lives on
