Collides with Beauty

And I know And I know And I know And I know, you know It should be me that's holding you And I know that pride Collides with beauty And I know, you know It should be me that's touching you And I know that pride Collides with beauty I'm upside down and inside out The room's not big enough I'm waiting for your love Been waiting for your love Goin' 'round and 'round, half falling down The floor's not flat enough I'm waiting for your love Been waiting for your love And I know, you know It should be me that's holding you And I know that pride Collides with beauty And I know, you know It should be me that's touching you And I know that pride Collides with beauty And I know, you know It should be me that's holding you And I know that pride Collides with beauty And I know, you know It should be me that's loving you And I know that pride Collides with beauty It's too much, it's not enough The walls can't hold me up I'm waiting for your love Been waiting for your love I'm back and forth and forth and back The window's fogging up I'm waiting for your love

And I know, you know It should be me that's holding you And I know that pride

Been waiting for your love

Collides with beauty

And I know, you know It should be me that's touching you And I know that pride Collides with beauty

And I know, you know It should be me that's holding you And I know that pride Collides with beauty

And I know, you know It should be me that's loving you And I know that pride Collides with beauty
