I'm growing tired and I'm growing old And the road I walk, I walk alone And I wonder if and I think I might Take a look, take a look on the other side For five days I will walk away From the lonely life, I am done with pain And I wonder if and I think I might Take a look, take a look on the other side Just one look All my demons Greeting me here as a friend I'm home Waiting for time to let go Peace in my body and soul Oh . . . Oh, oh Born to live And I know I've tried To keep myself in peace with time Without control at all in life I'll be fine, I'll be fine on the other side Pack my bags I know the road I write the words and here I go Towards the peace I need to find I'll be fine, I'll be fine on the other side All my demons Greeting me here as a friend Oh... I'm home Waiting for time to let go Peace in my body and soul Oh... I meet the eyes I recognise how they have changed with time I find myself surrounded by a coffin in the night I meet the eyes I recognise how they have changed with time I find myself surrounded by a coffin in the night All my demons Greeting me here as a friend Oh... I'm home Waiting for time to let go

Peace in my body and soul

Oh...

I meet the eyes
I recognise how they have changed with time
I find myself surrounded by a coffin in the night

Oh
Body and soul
Oh...
Oh, oh
