Automatic Loveletter

Here I lay in my bed
Wondering how you are and where you've been.
I've got scratches on my hand from the guy begging for attention
Your memory on my lips from the other night when you kissed them

Play me subtle and crass.
Broken heart lending a cast of fire.
And you see the clash.
I wasn't prepared for this.
You took a ten second count, count on a New Years kiss.

And when I lay down tonight.
I've been up and down the coast.
Left, right, north, east, west, back home south,
And I lay down tonight.
In North Carolina, Chicago, New York, and Hollywood.
And I, I found nobody other than you.

So time is only a noose.
With everyday that goes by I'm turning black and blue.
Memories feeding my heart.
So much, but it only starts,
Under the street lights and boulevards.
Like a candle that's light in the dark.
I will find.
And I will find you.

And when I lay down tonight.
I've been up and down the coast.
Left, right, north, east, west, back home south,
And I lay down tonight.
In North Carolina, Chicago, New York, and Hollywood.
And I, I found nobody other than you.
Lay down tonight.
When I lay down tonight.

So here I lay in my bed.
Some new hotel room, but it's mine 410.
Before I lay down I'm coming home tonight.
Cause I'm gonna get you back.

Lay down tonight.
I've been up and down the coast
Left, right, north, east, west, back home south,
And I lay down tonight.
In North Carolina, Chicago, New York, and Hollywood.
And I, I found nobody other than you.
That can make my body do the things it does for you.
Like dancing on sidewalks from the beat of my heart when it pumps.
In North Carolina, Chicago, New York, and Hollywood.
