Remember Last Time

Avi Buffalo

Remember last time, you know how it went I thought it served you all too well And all along I had something in my eye How long can we go this close, How soon before my laughs die? If I had to tell you, something about myself I don't think that you could have handled it well You don't put up with so much stuff that you're cool How long did I really last, How soon were you sick of me too?

Why'd don't we just go and ruin everything By taking this westbound, I know I seem too keen We'll only stop to talk about our feelings How good did you really feel, How much was he willing to spare I've never written a love song, but I will for you

I've never written a love song, I've never written a love song, I've never written a love song, I've never written a love song... ...I've never written a love song, but I will for you
