Greed

Axenstar

Been sleeping far too long
I haven't seen the changing horizon
But now the time has come
To defend my home my nation

Awakened by the sound
Of a thousand soldiers marching
The footsteps pounding the ground
In the land that once was mine

The silent winds of change Are sweeping across my land Creeping up from behind And destroying from within

Infectious like a disease
The new order has no meaning
No reason to believe
That they have come in peace

For the ones we've lost were still counting the cost And suffer in this living nightmare To save yourself never count on someone else You hold the key to your own destiny

With the blood of my own brothers on my hands I will fight 'til the last enemy fall Over and over, again and again Until the day when victory is won!

For the ones we've lost we're still counting the cost And suffer in this living nightmare To save yourself never count on someone else You hold the key to your own destiny