

Winter Love Song

Ayria

Feel the twilight glow
In the falling snow
And here you are
Smiling at me like you can't feel the cold
Hand in hand we walk
There's no need to say a word
With no other sounds but the Gentle sigh of an icy exhale

The world looks good dead
It looks so good dead you said
It looks so good dead
It looks so good dead instead

Even though
Your body was cold
When I embraced you
I swear I've never felt something so warm

The world looks good dead
It looks so good dead you said
The world looks good dead
It looks so good dead instead

A slowing pulse
My lips are blue
I kiss to feel the calm in you
It's strange I'm sure
But I prefer
The lifelessness of the world

A slowing pulse
My lips are blue
I kiss to feel the calm in you
It's strange I'm sure
But I prefer
The lifelessness of the world

I love you
It's all that's true
I want together to grow old
You know that
We're not perfect
But I think together we'll come close
It's hard to Accept that
Things will change and that's for sure
If we make it
We'll look back
And know we'll always have winter

The world looks good dead
It looks so good dead you said
