Bad Manners

Wet winter left me cold and crying, Beaten black and blue, Someone said there's no harm in trying, Nothing else to do. I'm just a-walking in the sunshine, Leave your troubles all behind you, I think I'll drink a little red wine, I'll take you where they'll never find you. Sad songs, well I've heard to many, Words that didn't rhyme, Long years never had a penny, But we spend the time. Just a-walking in the sunshine, Try to keep from going under, I think I'll drink a little red wine, Ain't no use to sit and wonder. As I would say? Autumn eve and the leaves are falling, 'till the trees are bare, Summer's gone I can hear you calling, Haven't got a care. Just a-walking in the sunshine, Leave your troubles behind you, I think I'll drink a little red wine, I'll take you where they'll never find you. As I would say?
