

A World Without Melody

Bad Religion

I don't want to live in a world without melody sometimes the rhythmic din of society is too much for me but purpose is prioritized these days, the goal is win the prize there's a sleeping resonance we hold, through which we're unified so let it out! don't just get lost in the crowd no one can deter you from your own path there's no trip too remote from which you can't come back and I've got this hunch about you and me none of us are ready for a world without melody
melody is the key,
it's the surest way
to unlock your individuality
melody is the key,
it will set you free!
don't disrelish harmony, community will make you whole work and understanding are the chords way deep within your soul they only need to be struck once, and the vibrations swell and spread but if we mute them they decay, our sensibilities are dead so let it out! don't just be one of the crowd hesitance and diffidence will do you in and your soul doesn't care for social medicine and I've got this hunch about you and me
melody is the key,
melody is the key,
it will set you free!
and I know,
together we could change the world just you and me but I won't live without melody
