I was born on planet earth the rotating ball where man comes first it's been around for a long, long time but now it's time to watch it die

I saw a man on my big blue screen he ruled the world economy he said the rich would never concede but some day soon he'll be put to sleep

I've seen the life of the forest green and adaptations of the deep blue seas and who knows who is the fittest they will all soon be put to rest

On a plunging flight and we're sitting in the pilots seat in the midst of life people on a dark horizon praying somebody will save their lives

I was born on planet earth at a drastic time full of plastic mirth and everyday I've seen increasing signs and you would too if you'd opened your eyes you had a chance you did not try so now it's time to watch it die
