Sunshine

Gone, gone are the days When the west was wild An every child's dream A light was seen Gone, gone are the days When the world just sung for tomorrow to come But she never came

If I was to break If I was to pay

Blue moon, are you lost again Where will I find your light Where will I find the truth How will we ever say goodbye

'Cause we're turning the pages again Bound by the lives that have been spent I'm not living your third world lies

Goodbye, better days ahead Goodbye

Gone, gone are the days
All these questions
No straight answers
Everybody's a high priced healer, hey
Gone, gone are the days
'Tis the season of change
Every scar on the hand marks a new day

Sleep child Slip into a dream Poppa hasn't been home Busy living out this crazy scene

Blue moon, are you lost again Where will I find your light Where will I find the truth How will we ever say goodbye

'Cause we're turning the pages again Bound by the lives that have been spent I'm not living your third world lies

Goodbye, better days ahead

Reached out to feel each grain A lifetime running through his hands The scorching heat left our heart The workings of a proud brown man But nowhere could you see Dark eyes look away The pride and the flame

Reached out to feel the warmth Time running through his hands

Bamboo

The scorching heat gave life The heart of the proud brown man And he says to his child Who still couldn't stand

Someday
