

I'm Forgetting Everyone

Basia Bulat

Mine was a memory of amber walls
Yours was a house with the strangest doors
One day you told me your heart was full
I wanted to know what the trouble was

I loved your story for what it's worth
Spun them around me to watch them grow
But you found a way to forget some time ago
That I was your waterfall

When you say that you've been good
But you don't know where you were
I'm forgetting every word
I'm forgetting everyone
When the water's falling slowly
Where the river comes undone
I'm forgetting every word
I'm forgetting everyone

How did you bury these trails in dirt
Must be the way that you carry on
I can recall every second thought
You watered them dearly and drowned them all
I have been searching for Camelot
Finding your way somewhere down below
But you found a way to forget sometime ago
Without ever asking first

When you say that you've been good
But you don't know where you were
I'm forgetting every word
I'm forgetting everyone
When the water's falling slowly
And the rivers come undone
I'm forgetting everyone
I'm forgetting everyone
