Someone For Everyone

There is always someone there for everyone You might not believe it now, but give it time Then say it clearly, say it straight Forget you know this language well You cannot hide away from love Though you can run this could be a revolution This could be love's resurrection one door shuts, another opens there is someone there for you who doesn't mind One who knows - the past is better left behind Dreams enormous dreams And one who dares enough to live again ?cause trying hard and falling down is not a crime this could be revolution This could be love's resurrection
