

All Your Gold

Bat for Lashes

Never see the big church steeple, when I call you on the phone
Never feel the rush of angels, when we stay up late alone
Never whisper you a great love story, only scream and cry or moan

But you're a good man, but you're a good man
I keep telling myself to just let go
O-o-oh, let go of the one who took all your gold

I get home and there's a love note waiting,
But only he is here tonight
And the words, the promises you're making
Only echo all these lies
And for every sweet nothing you whisper
Why is goodbye my reply?

Cause you're a good man, cause you're a good man
I keep telling myself to just let go
There was someone that I knew before
A heart from the past that I can not forget
I let him take all my gold, and hurt me so bad
But now for you, I have nothing left of all my gold

Stare my heart blank, am I ever gonna let him go? Get my gold back
And today I was a dead girl walking,
City lights burn through the tears
Heard you say my name and get to talking about the love and all the fear
And you saw all the pain I was holding, and yet still you'd hold me near

Cause you're a good man, cause you're a good man,
I keep telling myself to just let go
There was someone that I knew before,
A heart from the past, that I can not forget
I let him take all my gold, and hurt me so bad
But now for you, I have nothing left
Cause there was someone that I knew before
A heart from the past, that I can not forget
I let him take all my gold, and hurt me so bad
But now for you, I have nothing left
Off all my gold