The Traveller

Beach House

When I come home You're just lying there Face against the wall Never had a care

I am just a traveller There's no light in this room And the body's aching at night

Would I be acting up If i said It's not enough

Who knows who else who is with No one is with the traveller There's a light in my eyes And a future invisible now

Heard it's your birthday Candles in a trow row Better blow them quick Before they're melting on the floor

You were never a traveller There's no light in your room And the bodies don't ache in the night

Would I be acting up If i said Not that much

Who else would do anything for the traveller There's a light in her eyes And a future visible touch

I was looking out of the window at the sky Starless vigil of a life that has gone by Saturn turning and I feel there's not much more For a vision of the night turn off your light