

I don't know what to feel but roses
I keep on holding breath until the
Night falls on my lonely bed
That was before the earth quaked

I haven't felt like this for ages
I cannot help but thinking of the
Endless times we spend in line
That was before the earth quaked

I could see the lines on your face
And your green eyes turn to grey
But I will never see a reason
I should ever go away
You could feel me drive into places
Still unknown until the day
I saw your innocence deceasing
Like a flower in the drain

Was it the scent, the smile on your face
Was it your silky skin, your fluffy hair
Around your neck that made me feel
We were about to earthquake

I guess I walked the air, out of mind
Forgot about the clerk, the change and
Drowned into the pools of your green eyes
We were about to earthquake

I could see the lines on your face
(I saw you - I saw your face)
And your green eyes turn to grey
(I saw you - I saw your face)
But I will never see a reason
(I saw you - I saw your face)
I should ever go away
(I saw you take my breath away)
You could feel me drive into places
(I saw you - I saw your face)
Still unknown until the day face
(I saw you - I saw your face)
I saw your innocence deceasing
(I saw you - I saw your face)
Like a flower in the drain
(I saw you take my breath away)
