Haunted House

I know baby's bad for my self-esteem Find another face for your sympathy Some of us cry, some of them lie But no one sees inside

The spark of baby's eyes and I turn to stone Maybe I can't survive in the danger zone Sounds of the night, streets without light Baby's not alone

Try to hold her to myself Someone else is breaking all my dreams, she Needs so many games to play

One more time I climb the stairs Open up the door and she was gone Baby, here I go

Like a lamb to slaughter Don't stop haunting me in this old house I still love you when you're not around I'm still waiting for your midnight ride I'll still love you when it's cold outside

Me so sorry that I let you down But you keep haunting me in this old town

And the smile is no longer there The face and the eyes and the hair Nothing stands the test of time You live forever, never mine I cling to dreams that turn to sand Our life is now a distant land

Commit emotional suicide Every single room is electrified Your memory shadowing me The house where sorrow hides

Pull it down, blow it up Help me send these walls of love away Baby, here I go

Like a lamb to slaughter Don't stop haunting me in this old house I still love you when you're not around I'm still waiting for your midnight ride I'll still love you when it's cold outside

Me so sorry that I let you down But you keep haunting me in this old town

Like a lamb to slaughter Don't stop haunting me in this old house I still love you when you're not around I'm still waiting for your midnight ride I'll still love you when it's cold outside

Me so sorry that I let you down But you keep haunting me in this old town

Don't stop haunting me in this old house I still love you when you're not around I'm still waiting for your midnight ride I'll still love you when it's cold outside Me so sorry
