Take a little piece now And save a little for laters If you come back in time There might be more for the taking Bite only what you can chew Take only what you can use There's plenty to go around if we don't abuse Revine the soul by letting go The weighty heart and heavy conscience Release the woes of a troubled world And give them one by one their fair dealing Take a little time to give a little more Take a little time to know a little more Save some time to understand Take a little time to give a little more Take a little time to know a little more Save some time to understand Oh take a little time to give a little more Take a little time to know a little more Save some time to understand Oh take a little time to give a little more Take a little time to know a little more Save some time to understand It's a heavy burden to bare If it's knowledge and wisdom we're wasting To allow a people to fall forsaken It's a heavy load to shift What matters now we begin And don't take to long with the mending and the fixing So many souls are aching Too many hearts have been breaking Forgive the fools that were mistaken No one ever did find a good use for regret Take a little time to give a little more Take a little time to know a little more Save some time to understand Take a little time to give a little more Take a little time to know a little more Save some time to understand Oh take a little time to give a little more Take a little time to know a little more Save some time to understand Oh take a little time to give a little more Take a little time to know a little more Save some time to understand Revine the soul by letting go Release the woes of a troubled world Forgive the fools that were mistaken No one ever did find a good use for regret Take a little time to give a little more Take a little time to know a little more Save some time to understand Take a little time to give a little more Take a little time to know a little more Save some time to understand Oh take a little time to give a little more

Take a little time to know a little more

Save some time to understand

Take a little time to give a little more

Take a little time to know a little more

Save some time to understand

So give a little

Take a little now

Give a little

Take a little now

Give a little

Take a little now

Give a little

Take a little now
